To whom it may concern,

I do not kid myself that I know everything about this case, the government or Microsoft. But...

I believe opening the road up wider to another market for Microsoft doesn't seem like its going to help end the monopoly that they have on the government, business and consumer worlds.

Did you mean to do that? Or did you get manipulated into this settlement?

Don't get me wrong I believe in helping schools. But I also believe that monopolies are wrong regardless on how much money the have and what politicians they support.

I expected more from my government.

Thank you for a least letting me state my opinion.

Sincerely,
